

Name of participant : Chhun Bunnarith
Agency : Department of Water Resources and Meteorology
Country : Cambodia

INDIVIDUAL REPORT

What is IWRM to me?

IWRM to me relates to water and how this resource is allocated for beneficial use. This aspect and method for managing water is new to me. However, this method or kind of approach to water management will help me understand more on how to conserve water especially in the management of irrigation services.

IWRM is also management of resources around a certain body of water. It includes management of land and the humanity that inhabits around it. Everybody needs water so much, so this resource should be properly managed and protected.

Lessons learned:

I learned that the people help each other to manage the irrigation system. They pay a small amount of money or in kind to help the association and the head of the irrigation system.

I learned also that they allocate water for the use of everybody. They themselves help each other to manage the water system especially during the dry season.

Plans:

With the knowledge I gain from the training I will do my very best to contribute in the performance of the functions of my agency including IWRM in water management and development projects.